Opened and inspected

Any mail which is suspected of containing quarantine risk material is inspected, to prevent the introduction of new pests and diseases which could damage Western Australia's agriculture industry, natural environment and lifestyle.

Quarantine WA and Australia Post opened your mail because our screening process indicated it might contain an item of quarantine risk material.

On inspection, however, either no items of concern were found or the items complied with interstate quarantine regulations and were cleared. No items have been removed from your mail.
