

Service Provider Directory

To assess the feasibility of carbon farming into existing and proposed business activities, landholders may require professional advice on how to integrate carbon farming into their business.

Landholders may wish to seek independent expert advice from specialists including carbon service providers, agribusiness / agronomists, environmental consultants, financial or legal advisors. Others may wish to access providers who can provide an end-to-end service with in-house specialists.

Whilst many Australian carbon projects are registered with the Clean Energy Regulator (CER), there are other market options (Non-Emission Reduction Fund) for landholders emerging such as biodiversity credits and in-setting that landholders should seek professional advice on.

Many Australian carbon projects are registered with the CER. DPIRD advises landholders new to the carbon market and the Australian Carbon Credit Unit (ACCU) Scheme* to seek professional advice regarding the technical and regulatory aspects of a carbon farming project.

Please note – the Clean Energy Regulator (CER) has recently announced the Emissions Reduction Fund (ERF) is now referred to as 'the ACCU Scheme'.*

Service Provider Qualifications and Experience

Professional Service Providers active in the carbon farming industry offer a range of expertise. The type of provider will depend on the type of carbon farming project being considered. Landholders should undertake their own due diligence by checking the credentials of carbon farming project service providers. To assist landholders in their due diligence, the following qualifications or questions should be considered before contracting a service provider.

Natural Resource Management, Land Care and Grower Groups

- Do the staff / advisors for the NRM, land care or grower group hold suitable qualifications and experience?
- Can they provide examples of other projects they have successfully established in your region?
- Do they have access to up-to-date software, mapping capabilities?

Carbon Project Development and Management

- Is the carbon project developer a signatory to the Australia Carbon Industry Code of Conduct?
- If the carbon project developer is providing financial advice (for example ACCU or derivative price forecasting, trading, investment strategies etc), do they hold the appropriate carbon market category Australian Financial Services Licence (AFSL)? Further information on ACCUs as a financial product can be found here.
- Can the Project Developer provide examples of projects they have successfully established with other landholders?
- Do they have access to up-to-date software, mapping capabilities?
- The Carbon Market Institute administers the Australian Carbon Industry Code of Conduct. They list all current signatories on their webpage.

The Australian Securities and Investments Commission is responsible for administering the AFSL regime and keeps a searchable professional register of all AFSL holders.

Agribusiness Advisors and Agronomists

- Is the advisor a member of the Australian Association of Agricultural Consultants of WA (AAAC [WA])?
- Does your Agronomist have suitable qualifications and experience?
- The AAAC (WA) is a professional association of member consultants and provides a list of consultants with their area of expertise on their website.

Environmental and Revegetation Consultants

- Is the consultant a member of the Environmental Consultants Association (WA) Inc. (ECA) or the Revegetation Industry Association of WA?

The Environmental Consultants Association (WA) Inc. (ECA) is the lead professional body representing commercial environmental consultants throughout Western Australia and provides a list of 160 registered consultants to search for via their area of expertise. The Revegetation Industry Association of WA (RIAWA) also provides a directory of members.

Soil Technicians and Laboratories

- Is the soil core technician experienced in collection and handling of samples for organic carbon and bulk density analysis?
- Is the spectrometer technician experienced in the CER requirements for the spectrographic device settings and the sampling process and analysis?
- Does the laboratory have the relevant Australasian Soil and Plant Analysis Council (ASPAC) certification and National Association of Testing Authorities (NATA) accreditation?

The Estimating soil organic carbon sequestration using measurement and models method, requires ASPAC certification for Total Carbon method 6B2 and Total Organic Carbon method 6B3, and NATA accreditation for organic carbon, bulk density and moisture analysis. ASPAC and NATA list laboratory status on their websites.
