

Sheep Supply Chain Training Program

The Sheep Supply Chain Training Program is a funded custom training program for individuals who wish to pursue a career in the agrifood industry. Specifically, the five-day residential program in Western Australia (WA) will focus on the sheep meat and wool industries.

Katanning and Perth 20–25 January 2019

Who should apply?

Individuals from various disciplines, both undergraduates, recent graduates and postgraduates are welcome to apply. Your studies do not have to be specific to agribusiness or agrifood, however, a demonstrated interest to work in the sheep industry is desired. This is open to all sectors of both the meat and wool supply chains.

Key benefits

By completion, you will:

- develop a sound understanding of the theoretical concepts and technologies relevant to sheep supply and value chains - what a supply/value chain is, importance and value-add.
- take part in the 'walk-the-chain' experience.
- network and share ideas with senior industry practitioners and experts in the Western Australia sheep industry.

The program will be highly interactive with a mix of classroom style lectures, industry presentations and site visits.

For more information on the program and application process, please visit agric.wa.gov.au/sheep/sheep-supply-chain-training-program